MASH TESTED, PASSED & ELIGIBLE

MASH (Manual for Assessing Safety Hardware) presents uniform guidelines for crash testing permanent and temporary highway safety features and recommends evaluation criteria to assess test results.

MASH updates and replaces NCHRP Report 350. This manual is recommended for highway design engineers, bridge engineers, safety engineers, researchers, hardware developers, crash test laboratories, and others concerned with safety features used in the highway environment. Products addressed in MASH include longitudinal barriers, transitions, end terminals, crash cushions, breakaway supports, truck mounted attenuators, and work zone traffic control devices. The crash performance is judged on structural adequacy, occupant risk, and vehicle trajectory.

Key Points
• All new testing will be done following MASH evaluation techniques.
• Hardware accepted under NCHRP Report 350 is appropriate for replacement and new installation. Retesting is not required.
• As of January 1, 2011, all new products must be tested using MASH crash test criteria for use on the National Highway System (NHS).

NCHRP 350 Sunset
On November 12, 2015, FHWA issued a memorandum indicating that all modifications to NCHRP 350-tested devices will require testing under MASH in order to receive a Federal-aid eligibility letter from FHWA. In addition, a Federal Register Notice was also issued regarding this action. This has provided a significant step toward the implementation of MASH.
